UNIVERSALISTS YOUNG PEOPLE'S DAY
Special Programme Carried Out at Both Services—Eight New Members and Initiatory Service Used For First Time.

Young People's day was observed Sunday at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, with special programmes, at the Young People's service at 6:15 p. m., both having a large attendance.
At the church service at 10:30 a. m. members of the Young People's Christian Union assisted in the service, Miss Eleanor Gebhardt leading the responsive reading, Miss Edith Washburn reading the scripture lesson, and Richard J. Raymond giving the prayer and reading the hymns. The sermon by the pastor, Rev. Joseph F. Cobb, was particularly adapted to the day and was upon the topic, "Be an Example from the text, 'Let no man despise thy youth; but be thou an example of the believers, in word, in conversation, in charity, in good works, in faith, in purity.'"
The pastor pointed out that this was an age when the work of the world is being committed to the young as never before, and in that God's call was not to be disregarded, for he calls young men and young women to follow Him in that ideal youth which walks with God, which has begun the service of man, and which honors itself.

COMMITTEE EXPECTS BIG ATTENDANCE TONIGHT
Address by Field Secretary Woodward in Town Hall on Playgrounds Will Be Illustrated.

President John B. Stanton of the Norwich Playgrounds association states that from indications there will be a large number at the town hall this evening for the address by Field Secretary Woodward of New York who will give an illustrated address on Playgrounds under the auspices of the Norwich Playgrounds association. This will be the first part of the opening of the campaign for 1912 by the association.

In summing up his address on The Playgrounds as a Factor in School Hygiene, George E. Johnson, superintendent of Playgrounds association, at Pittsburgh, Pa., says:

"First, we do not take care of our children."
Secondly, we need to improve our care along four lines, namely, better food, better air, more sunshine, better exercise.
Thirdly, in the very nature of the case, the playground alone can adequately supply the last three of these to the child.
Fourthly, this is no new experiment. We have the classic playground along with classic literature, architecture and art.

Finally, just as we have awakened to the fact that the school provides but a small fraction of a child's education, and that the environment which includes everything that comes into the child's experience, is teaching him every waking moment of the day (perhaps every sleeping hour of the night), so we have come to understand that the activities of the school provide but a small fraction of the exercise necessary for the health of a child in this larger meaning. In the long process of race development, every organ and function of the body has been tried and tested, and has been refined and passed on, and some yet higher function, some yet nobler conduct, shall spring from their roots. Not in the school but on the playground, can these deep instincts of workmanship, imitation, rivalry, co-operation, and their true and genetic expression, be so fully and so healthily manifested in the soul as the swift seasons roll. These instincts calling from the depths of the child's nature are not voices calling him astray, or to delay his upward progress.

TOOK HIS LIFE IN ICE COATED HARBOR.
Philip Hussey Had Been Out of Work and Aged Strangely.
Philip Hussey, for a long time a fireman in the employ of the Central Vermont Propeller company at New London, committed suicide Saturday morning about 7:30 o'clock by jumping into the river at the foot of John street, New London.

Hussey had been out of employment for a week or more, having a finger on which a felon had appeared. The impaired hand was making progress toward healing, but it had been very painful and a surgeon had lanced it. The hand was in a very bad place had been the home of Timothy Driscoll in East New London.
Friday evening Hussey left his boarding place, at the Driscoll home, and proceeded to a Mrs. Ellen Casey's boarding house, with saloon, where he engaged a room for two nights, and retired early.

Saturday morning about 7 o'clock Hussey appeared in the saloon of the Casey place, absolutely nude. He left his bed and came down stairs, where he occasioned much excitement.
He left there and, going to the backyard, crossed the railroad tracks just ahead of the train which leaves here at 8:50, and jumped into the water, where he was drowned. The body was soon recovered.

Hussey was about 35 years of age and a widower. He had a three year old daughter in a home in New Haven, and a son, a boy of 10, in his brother, John, who resides in Norwich.

DOMINICAN MISSIONARY HEARD.
Rev. Charles H. McKenna, Eloquent and Vigorous at 77, Tells St. Patrick's Congregation What the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass Is.

In the historic white habit and black cloak with white-lined hood of the Order of St. Dominic, Rev. Charles H. McKenna, O. P., of New York, preached at the high mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday, following a few words of introduction by the rector, Rev. Hugh Treanor. The venerable missionary, now nearly 70, who has spent his life in the upbuilding of Christ's kingdom upon earth, and who has been especially designated the Apostle of the Holy Mass, referred briefly to the subject of his visit to the parish, and why he was endeavoring to increase the membership in the Holy Mass society during the evening vespers service. He then read the text, "The Mass is first and foremost a sacrifice. It is a sacrifice, explaining that his topic was to be the Mass. The text follows: 'For I have received of the Lord that which I also deliver unto you, that the Lord Jesus, the same night in which he was betrayed, took bread; and when he had given thanks, he brake it, and said, 'This is my body, which is broken for you; this do in remembrance of me.' After the same manner also he took the cup, when he had supped, saying, 'This cup is the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you; this do ye as often as ye drink it, in remembrance of me.' For as often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup, ye show my body and blood of the Lord Jesus Christ." Starting with the simplest form of instruction which a Catholic receives, from the catechism, the speaker explained the relation between this sacrifice and the Eucharist, and produced the Last Supper, and the Mass, which latter is defined in the catechism as the offering of the unbloody sacrifice of Christ, crucified, sacrificed to all religion, what life is to the body; without it religion is dead. Even Pius IX. declares that primitive man, ignorant even of husbandry, of domestic life, of the art of worship, a higher being has had his sacrifice. Sacrifice in its origin is of the remotest antiquity. Cain and Abel offered sacrifice; Noah offered sacrifice; so did Melchizedech. David foretold and foretold the sacrifice which Christ would institute. The Indian beyond the Rocky mountains, the Aztec dweller in Mexico, and the Peruvian, the primitive man of western Europe, Druids, Scots, Ivernians, left traces of their altars. Wherever there has been man, there has been the priest, the altar, the sacrifice. Christ not only instituted but by the words of Holy Writ commanded sacrifice, which had been definitely commanded in the Old Testament, and in the New Testament, and again the catechism tells why the sacrifice of the Mass is offered, the reason being fourfold: i. e., to give God honor and glory, in thanksgiving for a communion of Christ's death, in atonement for our sins and to ask God's help in obtaining graces and blessings.

The momentous character of this sacrifice was explained by the missionary; the inability of man, worn of the earth, to give proper glory to omnipotence except through the loving aid of the mediator, Jesus Christ, and equal inability to offer adequate thanksgiving to the Giver of every gift, to express proper repentance for innumerable sins without the mediation of Christ, the mediator of grace and blessings without the same loving mediator. He pointed out the peril of undervaluing faith, without which man is as one lacking sight, and reproached those who permit trifling, sinful, foolish excuses to keep them from being present at this stupendous sacrifice which Christ has instituted as a memorial of his boundless love.

MIDWINTER MEETING OF COUNTY HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Will Be Held Here Feb. 8 With Old Silver Loan Exhibit and Two Papers.

The date of the annual midwinter meeting of the New London County Historical society, the programme for which was announced the other day, has been fixed. The meeting will be held Thursday, Feb. 8, at 3 p. m., in Slater Memorial, Norwich.

The committee of arrangements consists of Jonathan Trumbull, Prof. Henry A. Tirrell, Mrs. Amos A. Browning and Mrs. Eliza E. Rogers, all of Norwich. Mrs. Browning and Mrs. Rogers will have charge of the loan exhibition of old colonial silver which is to be a feature of the meeting. Mrs. Browning had charge of the loan exhibition at the 25th anniversary celebration in Norwich three years ago.

Those attending from New London are requested to bring any pieces of old silver they may have for the exhibit. They can take any such pieces away right after the meeting, so that there will be no danger of loss or injury.

The meeting is open to the public. The two papers of the meeting will be read by George M. Curtis of Meriden, president of the International Silver company of that city, and Park Commissioner George S. Palmer of New London.

When the late Mary Benjamin of New London was in her last sickness she provided for the turning over of her genealogical papers and historical matter to Mrs. Ellen Morgan Friebe, and she named Mrs. Friebe as her literary executrix. Mrs. Friebe immediately after Mrs. Benjamin's death took over the papers and began the task of getting them ready for presentation to the New London County Historical society, which Mrs. Benjamin intended as the final disposition of the collection.

There was evening prayer and an address Sunday afternoon at the Sheltering Arms by Rev. R. W. Cochran, rector of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic. He took for the subject of the address, Living Water.

When we look into the gospel of Christ, he said, we begin to see our lives as we really are, and to crave the water of life that shall make us what we ought to be. It does two things, enriches life and interprets life. It tells us that God is our Father, Christ our Saviour, and the Holy Spirit our Guide and Counsellor.

The hymns for the day—Jesus, Lover of My Soul. The Church's One Foundation, and Now the Day is Over—were a helpful part of the service as sung by members of Grace church choir, with Mrs. Raymond Congdon at the piano.
